

EDUCATION 3.0: ICT and e-Learning Course

24-30th August 2014, Almería, SPAIN

Education 3.0 is a constructivist, heutagogical approach to teaching and learning. The teachers, learners, networks, connections, media, resources, tools create a unique entity that has the potential to meet individual learners', educators', and even societal needs

CONTENTS:

- Education 3.0 as a stimulus for Entrepreneurship
- Use of ICT in Education to mitigate School Dropout
- Hangout and Videoconferencing in Education
- Social Media as a facilitator of a new pattern of collaborative learning
- Collaborative Learning. From Interactive to Collaborative Technologies
- eTwinning to share experiences of Collaborative Educational Projects
- European Projects Statement in relation to ICT and Education
- Educational Apps for Teachers and Students
- Mobile Learning (Smartphones, Tablets...)

UNESCO argues that “e-Learning is bringing about an important shift within the education sector and is changing the very nature of learning. The flexibility and accessibility of information that characterize e-Learning correspond to the new types of skills required of workers in a knowledge-based economy”

This Course is regarded as an In-service Training Course under the new Erasmus+ program
